4. Financial Statement and Status of Investments

There were no financial issues to discuss. Everything is in order.

The Executive was informed that after the Annual Report for 2021 was sent to CMOS national, it was determined that there needed to be an annotation to the Financial Statement for 2021, to identify that there was a holdover of $150 still on the Centre's books from 2020. The $150 was part of the matching funds provided by CMOS for the 2020 Science fairs ($450 in total) that were cancelled due to the pandemic. The Ottawa Centre spent $600 on prizes for the two science fairs held in 2021, but the amount of $300 (usually provided to the organizers of the Ottawa Science Fair, the ORSF) was not spent in 2021, so the part of that contributed by CMOS national (the $150) is still on the Centre's books. The Executive agreed that the Annual Report for 2021 should be amended to reflect this information and that the Centre should spend the $150 carried forward on the 2022 Science Fairs. ACTION: Barry Goodison will work with Yvon Bernier to make the amendment and Barry will send the revised report to CMOS National as soon as possible.

5. Communications Update

There were no communications matters to report, other than those associated with the upcoming talk by Dr Humphreys (see item 6.2 below).

6. Speakers/talks for the Ottawa Centre

6.1 Review of the 20 January 2022 talks by Trevor Andersen and Astrid Schetselaar

Denis Bourque provided his report on participation in the talks by Trevor Andersen and Astrid Schetselaar, noting that 46 screens attended the session; 27 (55%) of these were CMOS members; and 17 (37%) were Students (4 of these students are amongst the 27 CMOS Members). He added that 66 persons had registered, therefore, 68% attended.

The Executive noted that both talks had been excellent, the presentations very well put together and delivered. The Chair warmly thanked the Centre's two student representatives, Ada Loewen and Abby Dalton, for their leading roles in organizing the student talks in 2021 and now in 2022.

Bob Jones sends notices and reminders of upcoming luncheon talks to the Ottawa Centre contact list and, in addition, Denis arranges for a Zoom reminder to be sent to all those that had registered (it was sent on the morning of the talk on the 20th). For the next talk, Denis will try to generate that Zoom reminder the day before the talk to see if that makes any difference to the numbers participating.

6.2 Final schedule for the 2021-22 season

The Centre's schedule for this season is complete.

The next speaker will be Dr Elyn Humphreys on 17 February 2022 (see Table 2). Ray Desjardins has kindly agreed to introduce the speaker and Barry Goodison will manage the questions and answers. Bob Jones informed the Executive that everything is in order for the February talk and noted that Dr Humphreys does not want the talk recorded on video. Bob plans to send the notice for the talk on Wednesday of the current week.

Although it has not yet been announced publicly, CMOS National has informed the Centre Chairs that Dr Eric Oliver has agreed to be the 2022 CMOS Tour Speaker, and that the date for his talk will be 17 March. The event will be promoted and organized by CMOS National. The Centre agreed with Helen's suggestion to close the loop on arrangements between the Ottawa Centre and Dr Oliver. ACTION: Helen Joseph will contact Dr Oliver, cc Jim Abraham, offer congratulations, and let him know the talk will be organized now by CMOS National.

6.3 Possible speakers for the 2022-23 season

The Centre discussed potential speakers and themes for the 2022-23 season talks. For all follow-up actions, the list, along with the proponents for each suggestion, is circulating separately to the formal minutes as the information is so tentative at this stage.

6.4 Gifts for future speakers

The Executive considered whether or not to offer any form of gifts to future speakers. In the past, books had been offered to some speakers at in-person luncheon talks, noting that some speakers (including government employees) were not able to receive any kind of gift at all). The books had not cost the Centre anything – most of them had been offered to CMOS National as part of a book review process. It is not necessary for the Ottawa Centre to distribute those books, but it could do so if wished.

Other suggestions included purchasing books to offer speakers, or offering gift certificates, or making contributions to charity on behalf of the speaker.

In all cases, the Chair always sends a message of thanks to the speakers to acknowledge and appreciate their contribution.

After weighing the pros and cons, the Executive decided that no costed gifts would be offered in future, but that in all cases, a message of thanks would continue be sent.

7. Science Fairs 2022

Outaouais Science Fair: Yvon Bernier has been in touch with the organizers of the Outaouais Science Fair for 2022, and they have decided the event will be virtual this year. As always, the Ottawa Centre will provide $300 in prize money (with $200 to be offered to the secondary level winner and $100 to go to the winner at elementary level). The Centre does not need to provide any funding to the organizers of the Outaouais Science Fair, as they have a corporate sponsor that looks after that. Further discussions take place later in the week.

Ottawa Regional Science Fair (ORSF): Len Barrie has been in touch with Simon McMillan (OSRF) to inform them who will be the judges representing the CMOS Ottawa Centre for the 2022 event, namely Len Barrie, Ray Desjardins, Abby Dalton and Ada Loewen. The event will be virtual in 2022. The judges need to register with ORSF. Submission of proposals by the students will close at the end of March. The Science Fair will take place on 8 April, and the awards will be handed out on 9 April. Len has informed ORSF that the Ottawa Centre will provide $300 in prizes, with $200 to go to the first place winner and $100 to go to the second place winner.

In past years for in-person events, the Centre has always provided an additional $300 to the ORSF organizers. This was not paid in 2021 during the first virtual event. ACTION: Len Barrie will clarify whether the $300 for the ORSF organizers will be offered in 2022. Denis Bourque reminded the Executive that the Centre's level of contribution over the last 15 or so years allows the Centre to be recognized in brochures and promotional materials which contributes to the CMOS profile in the Science Fairs. NB: subsequent to this meeting, it was noticed that CMOS is listed by ORSF as a Bronze level sponsor (<https://www.orsf.ca/sponsorship/sponsors/>). ACTION: Len Barrie will speak with the ORSF organizers about ways to maintain and increase the CMOS visibility at the Science Fairs and will pass on to the Executive the requirements for the various levels of sponsorship.

As noted in item 4 above, the Chair will only ask CMOS National for matching funds for the prize money for 2022, as the Centre had retained $150 for the contribution to the ORSF from the 2020 matching funds.

8. Elections 2022

Dawn Conway (past Chair) has contacted all current members of the Centre's Executive to determine whether they plan to stand for election in 2022. Dawn Conway, Helen Joseph and Leslie Malone will not be running again this year. All others have indicated their willingness to serve another year. With Len Barrie becoming Chair for the next season, there will be a need to identify a new vice-chair. Bob Jones indicated he wishes to pass some of the Membership responsibilities to another member of the Executive, so there will likely be a need to re-evaluate the Terms of Reference as currently written and adjust the distribution of duties. As well, the Executive will consider the tasks of Secretary and how that role will evolve.

The Executive discussed people to invite to stand for election this year. This list is circulating separately to the minutes as the information is tentative.

9. Other business

No issues were raised.

10. Date of Next Meeting of the Ottawa Centre Executive

The next meeting of the CMOS Centre Chairs will be on 8 March 2022 and the March luncheon meeting is scheduled for 17 March. The next meeting for the Ottawa Centre will take place, by Zoom, on Tuesday, 15 March 2022, at 14:00.

11. Adjournment

The Chair thanked all for their participation and contributions to the discussions. The meeting adjourned at 15:37.
